Dear Dr. Fatih,

Many thanks to your second review and comments on the paper. We express our gratitude to your great contribution. Look forward to the next collaboration with you.

Best Regards,

Dear Editor,

This manuscript is convenient from my point of view with two simple corrections that are indicated by red color in the enclosed document. The manuscript could be accepted with these two simple corrections.

Additionally, Table 1 was better in the previous version; because the p values isn't necessary in Table 1. We could see the differences by percentages. Both the previous version and the current version of Table 1 could be selected. The choice should be left to the author.

Sincerely

Dear Dr. Büyükcum,

The author(s) has revised the paper "Patients', Nurses' and Physicians' Perception of Delays in Emergency Department Care" in response to your comments as well as comments of the other reviewers. Please find enclosed the revised manuscript. I have included a copy of your original comments.

Please re-review the manuscript and prepare a written assessment report which supports your final recommendation to accept or reject the revised manuscript for publication. Please return your review of the manuscript to me within one week.

Thanks in advance.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor,

I had a long free time today and I have read the article curiously and with great pleasure. The topic was very nice and the results could be useful for health providers. But there are a lot of problems with this article. Attached please find the "paper review form" and the reviewed article in word format.

Sincerely yours.
