Dear Fatih,

Thank you for your email and for your interest in becoming a peer reviewer for the journal. I have now updated your profile on Editorial Manager to allow you reviewer log in privileges, and informed the editors of your availability as a reviewer. You will receive further instructions the first time you are invited to review a paper.

In the meantime, when you have a moment, I would suggest that you log in to your account on Editorial Manager and update your list of Personal Classification terms by clicking on “Update my Information”. The editors use these terms in helping them to decide which papers would be the most appropriate to invite you to review based on your areas of expertise, and the more terms you have selected, the more likely you are to be invited to review a paper.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Best regards,

Madiha Chaudry
